D. C. O'MALLEY, the private detective who was indicted by a New Orleans grand jury for jury bribing in the case of The People against the Murderers of Chief Hennessy, the result of which precipitated the massacre of the Italians, has been released. The prosecuting attorney dismissed the case because he could not produce the witnesses necessary to convict O'Malley. It seems the witnesses are in jail and refuse to testify.

DEBATED BEFORE THE JURY.

Democratic Editors Asked to Tell What They Know.

The publication of a paragraph in the Daily Review of this morning in reference to the grand jury and the Mt. Zion election fraud case occasioned something of a stir among the members of the jury, who felt that the article in question was a reflection upon them as honorable gentlemen sworn to perform their duty, and an imputation that they were not ready to thoroughly investigate all violations of the statutes of which they or anybody else had knowledge. The grand jury is still working on the Mt. Zion and other cases as rapidly as possible. The Review comment alluded to is as follows:

It is almost certain that the grand jury will indict W. H. Hunter, of Mt. Zion, charging him with fraud in the last election. It would be strange if he were not indicted. Milo Thomas and old man Scott, both from Mt. Zion, two of the grand jurors, are on the jury, and Hunter's most bitter enemies, are on the grand jury. It looks as if they were there for a purpose and not by accident. Mt. Zion township has been raked and scoured for evidence against Hunter. Every voter who might give testimony against him has been called before the jury. Two ladies have been giving their whole time to the Mt. Zion matter the last three days.

While the grand jury is at work on election frauds it might take up others in the county. There is not only a township where there is suspicion of crooked work. There are places, too, where the investigation might be made by the grand jury at large, without the having the color of the case work.

The jury took offense at the foregoing comment. They were sworn to investigate all violations brought before them, and several members of that body said this morning that they will perform their duties without fear or favor, let the fall what it may. Instantly upon the assembling of the jury to-day forthwith summonses were issued to bring the entire editorial and reportorial force of the Review before the jury, and Dailiff Hunter was given the papers to serve.

The subpoenas were for Jerry Donahue, John P. Deenan and Howard C. Schaub. Mr. Donahue and Mr. Schaub were found but Mr. Deenan could not be located for the reason that he is somewhere in the west on a vacation trip.

Mr. Donahue frankly admitted to the Republican reporter that he knew nothing whatever about any election frauds in Macon county, and remarked that he could get through with the jury in less than four seconds.

Neither Mr. Donahue nor Mr. Schaub were heard by the jury to-day, owing to press of testimony in the Mt. Zion case. The jury adjourned until Monday noon. One jurymen remarked: "We will give the gentlemen until Monday to work up a case."

Deatur Money in Colorado.

In a column description of the Beaver Gold Belt mining property near White Pine, Hamilton county, Colo., we find the following reference in the 177th Fine Print to mining property in which F. M. Patterson and other Deatur people are interested:

While in camp we met Frank M. Patterson, of Deatur, Ill., who has recently become interested in Beaver mining property. He owns the Deatur, the Good Hope, and interests in other claims. The last winter he in white quartz lead and carries a good paying percentage of gold. Mr. Patterson is much impressed with the bright outlook of the Beaver gold belt, and expects to open an extensive scale next season. He also owns the Baltimore mine in the Mt. Mountain district. Mr. Patterson will probably visit the Deatur before returning to Illinois.

The Peck Inquest.

Coroner Bondare has returned from Oakley township where, at the house of Thomas Chambers, he held an inquest on the body of Mrs. Margaret Peck, wife of James K. Peck, who shot herself in the head with a revolver. The only witnesses were Edith Polnah, Anna Bozeler and Dr. J. C. Ellis. Miss Polnah was up stairs in the hall when she heard the report of the pistol; she went to the door and saw Mrs. Peck on the floor with the revolver in her hand, smoke still issuing from the barrel. That was about all the evidence. The jury, composed of Chris Miesick, J. C. Peck, John McFarland, W. A. Watson, Peter Marsh and Hanson Peck, returned a verdict that Mrs. Peck "came to her death by a pistol shot from her own hand, with suicidal intent."
